

The Intentional Day

Everything hard is done before my kids wake up. Here's the routine.

Two hours every morning that belong entirely to me — before my job, my kids, and everyone else gets their turn. This is what that looks like.

PART ONE

Night

The morning starts the night before.

- ☐ Screens off by 9pm
Give your mind time to decompress before sleep.
- ☐ Read 10 pages of a book you've been putting off
- ☐ Write tomorrow's top 3 priorities
Get it out of your head and onto paper.
- ☐ Prep your workout clothes and anything you need for the morning
- ☐ Wash up and get to bed at a reasonable hour

PART TWO

Morning

Everything that belongs to you, before the world gets its turn.

- ☐ Wake up before the house does
- ☐ 20oz of water
Add electrolytes if needed.
- ☐ Work out
Lift, run, or whatever gets you moving.
- ☐ Shower and get dressed
- ☐ 10 minutes of something that grounds you
A book, silence, prayer — whatever that looks like for you.

*My family and my work get my full attention now — because everything that belongs to me is already done.
That's the whole point.*